DESCRIPTION
Once upon a time there was a large valley, shadows, cat's cradle, an encyclopedia, a window with a blocked view and a back of beyond. So many ways to describe sometimes poetic, sometimes personal situations with simple images, words, and incidental sounds. Why not start to imagine new forms with the shadows on the wall, make up stories with old photos, or decompose the movement of a body dancing for a painting? These are some of the many ways in which to initiate new beginnings, over, and over, without end.
