DESCRIPTION
George-Yvon Antoine has Haïtian roots. For eight years, he has earned his living as a cab driver in Montréal. The comments of the clients and the harassment he suffers from White drivers are part of his daily life until an incident occurs at the cab station that threatens his job. Who can he trust? Neither the police, nor the cab company recognize that he has been harmed. For George-Yvon Antoine the line has been crossed. In an alliance with other Haïtian cab drivers, he decides to create a new taxi company.
