DESCRIPTION
The story of a group of Quebec missionary-priests working in Honduras. These priests don't just preach, they also work directly with the members of the community starting development projects such as pig farming, the founding of a health centre and agriculture. This video gives a perspective on the theology of liberation in Central America through the experience of these priests. It's an insight into the politics of this country, the regional militarisation and the gap which exists between the rich and the poor.
