DESCRIPTION
Like Cain and Abel, Romulus and Remus, or Eteocles and Polynices, this is the tale of two brothers who do not want to love one another. The eldest brother, a notary, plays the role determined by society. The younger brother, an artist, plays the role proposed by society. In order to explore the duality of the situation, the role of both characters is performed by the same actor. In the denouement, a murder will not take place. In its place, suicide...
