DESCRIPTION
The community is a key element in artist-run centre culture. A focus on the Articule centre in the Mile End and the Front Room centre in Williamsburg will show you how these centres operate and how they contribute to their surroundings.

This series documents the Brooklyn/Montreal project, a Centre Clark initiative involving 16 institutions and 40 artists in a series of reciprocal exhibitions that revealed the cultural differences and similarities of two cities, both standard-bearers of contemporary art in North America. The event took place in Montreal from October 19 to November 17, 2012, and in Brooklyn from January 10 to February 2, 2013.
